I. SCOPE OF ENGAGEMENT

1. I have been asked by Court-appointed Lead Counsel (“Counsel”)<sup>1</sup> for the putative Class (the “Class”) in the matter of In re Signet Jewelers Limited Securities Litigation to determine whether Signet Jewelers Limited (“Signet” or the “Company”) common stock traded in an open, well-developed and efficient market (hereinafter referred to as an “efficient market”)<sup>2</sup> from August 29, 2013 through March 13, 2018, inclusive (the “Class Period”).<sup>3</sup> I have also been asked by Counsel to opine on whether the calculation of damages on a class-wide basis is subject to a common methodology for all Class members in connection with their claims under Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act of 1934 (the “Exchange Act”) and U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission (“SEC”) Rule 10b-5 adopted thereunder (collectively, “Section 10(b)”).

2. I have reviewed the Complaint and assume the allegations are true for purposes of this report. I have made no independent investigation of the issues of liability and loss causation in this case. My report applies widely-accepted economic, financial and statistical analyses to determine whether the common stock at issue traded in an efficient market.

<sup>2</sup> “The fraud on the market theory is based on the hypothesis that, in an open and developed securities market, the price of a company’s stock is determined by the available material information regarding the company and its business.... Misleading statements will therefore defraud purchasers of stock even if the purchasers do not directly rely on the misstatements.” Basic Inc. v. Levinson, 485 U.S. 224, 241-242 (1988).

The premise of the fraud-on-the-market presumption is that “‘the price of a security traded in an efficient market will reflect all publicly available information about a company,’ so that ‘a buyer of the security may be presumed to have relied on that information in purchasing the security.’” In re Bridgepoint Educ. Inc. Sec. Litig., No. 12-cv-1737, 2015 WL 224631, at *6 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 15, 2015) (quoting Amgen, Inc. v. Conn. Ret. Plans & Trust Funds, 133 S.Ct. 1184, 1190 (2013)).

<sup>3</sup> Fifth Amended Class Action Complaint for Violations of the Federal Securities Laws dated March 22, 2018 (the “Complaint”) at p. 1. I refer to the “Class Period+” to mean the Class Period plus March 14, 2018, which is the price impact day following the last day of the Class Period.

3. My report is organized as follows: In Section II, I present my qualifications as an expert. In Section III, I summarize my opinions. In Section IV, I describe the concept of market efficiency. In Section V, I offer empirical support for the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market during the Class Period by examining the “operational” factors for demonstrating market efficiency set forth in Cammer v. Bloom, 711 F. Supp. 1264 (D.N.J. 1989) (“Cammer”) and Krogman v. Sterritt, 202 F.R.D. 467, 474-78 (N.D. Tex. 2001) (“Krogman”). In Section VI, I review the results of statistical tests examining the behavior of Signet’s stock price on earnings announcement and other dates collectively over the Class Period (referred to as “price-related” factors). These empirical analyses demonstrate that Signet common stock responded to new, Company-specific information, which also supports the conclusion that Signet stock traded in an efficient market. In Section VII, I show that the calculation of damages in this case can be done on a class-wide basis subject to a common methodology. In Section VIII, I summarize my conclusions.

III. SUMMARY OF OPINIONS

10. Based on my analysis to date, I have formed the following opinions:

OPINION 1: Throughout the Class Period, Signet common stock traded in an efficient market. This opinion is based on an analysis of a basket of factors, including those set forth in Cammer and Krogman, which, consistent with the fundamental principles of economics and finance and academic research, indicate that Signet common stock traded in an open, well-developed and efficient market. Commonly-utilized and generally-accepted statistical tests examining the behavior of Signet common stock price movements on earnings announcement dates collectively over the Class Period, as well as other empirical analyses of price movements, demonstrate that Signet common stock rapidly responded to unanticipated and material Company-specific information. Analysis of the other factors set forth in Cammer and Krogman also demonstrate that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

OPINION 2: The calculation of damages for violations of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act (and SEC Rule 10b-5) is subject to a common methodology and may be computed on a class-wide basis.

11. In reaching these opinions, I have relied upon various materials, which are listed in Appendix B. The research and analysis upon which my opinions are based has been conducted by me with the assistance of personnel working under my direction and supervision. My conclusions are based on information available to me as of the date of this report. I understand that discovery is ongoing, and I may review, evaluate, and analyze relevant material that becomes available to me in the future. I reserve the right to modify my conclusions based on additional information.

IV. BASIS FOR OPINIONS ON EFFICIENCY OF THE MARKET FOR THE SIGNET COMMON STOCK

A. Efficient Market Defined

12. A market is defined as being informationally efficient if prices of securities trading in that market reflect all material, publicly available information.<sup>8</sup> Further, informational efficiency means that prices of securities rapidly change to reflect new, unanticipated, material, public information. The notion behind efficient markets is that the competition among investors to discover new profit opportunities pushes security prices to reflect all material, publicly available information.

13. The finance literature supports the concept of market efficiency. The father of modern finance and Nobel Prize winner, Eugene Fama, wrote, “We shall conclude that,

<sup>8</sup> See Eugene F. Fama, Efficient Capital Markets: A Review of Theory and Empirical Work, 25 J. Fin., 383 (1970) (“A market in which prices always ‘fully reflect’ available information is called ‘efficient’”); Eugene F. Fama, Efficient Capital Markets: II, 46 J. Fin., 1575 (1991) (“I take the market efficiency hypothesis to be the simple statement that security prices fully reflect all available information.”).

with but a few exceptions, the efficient markets model stands up well,”<sup>9</sup> and “[i]n short, the evidence in support of the efficient markets model is extensive, and (somewhat uniquely in economics) contradictory evidence is sparse.”<sup>10</sup> In 1991, Professor Fama updated his analysis and wrote, “The empirical literature on efficiency and asset-pricing models passes the acid test of scientific usefulness.”<sup>11</sup> Professor Fama also wrote that “precise inferences about the degree of market efficiency are likely to remain impossible. Nevertheless, judged on how it has improved our understanding of the behavior of security returns, the past research on market efficiency is among the most successful in empirical economics, with good prospects to remain so in the future.”<sup>12</sup>

14. Cammer articulated five factors used by courts to evaluate whether a market is efficient for the purposes of establishing the presumption of investor reliance articulated by the Supreme Court in Basic Inc. v. Levinson, 485 U.S. 224 (1988). The fundamental principles of economics and finance that underlie a large body of academic research published over the past forty years support each factor as an indicator of market efficiency. For ease of comprehension, the factors can be separated into two general categories: “operational factors” and “price-related factors.”

1. *Operational Factors Employed to Evaluate Whether a Security Trades in an Efficient Market

15. The operational factors examine the trading and arbitrage activity in the market, with the clear understanding that (a) an efficient market is one in which anyone can buy and sell securities; (b) an efficient market is one that has a high level of trading activity, and for which trading information is readily available; and (c) an efficient market can be characterized as a liquid market that can absorb a reasonable amount of trading volume at relatively low trading costs.<sup>13</sup> As a result, the operational factors are used to examine whether there is sufficient liquidity, trading and arbitrage activity, along with widespread information dissemination, such that it can reasonably be expected that the market price for the security is efficient in that it rapidly reflects new information.<sup>14</sup>

Malkiel, The Efficient Market Hypothesis and Its Critics, 17 J. Econ. Perspectives 59 (2003).

16. The operational factors set forth in Cammer are:

- (1) average weekly turnover;<sup>15</sup>
- (2) analyst coverage;<sup>16</sup>
- (3) number of market makers or dealers of the common stock, along with arbitrageurs;<sup>17</sup> and

<sup>13</sup> Economists often suggest that, “The common metrics of liquidity are turnover, bid-ask spread, and transactional size.” This is also consistent with the operational Cammer factors. Handbook, p. 363.

<sup>14</sup> “In an open and developed market, the dissemination of material misrepresentations or withholding of material information typically affects the price of the stock, and purchasers generally rely on the price of the stock as a reflection of its value.” Peil v. Speiser, 806 F.2d 1154, 1161 (3d Cir. 1986).

“Indeed, nearly every court that has considered the proposition has concluded that where materially misleading statements have been disseminated into an impersonal, well-developed market for securities, the reliance of individual plaintiffs on the integrity of the market price may be presumed.” Basic, 485 U.S. at 247.

<sup>15</sup> “Turnover measured by average weekly trading of two percent or more of the outstanding shares would justify a strong presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one; one percent would justify a substantial presumption.” Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1286.

<sup>16</sup> “[I]t would be persuasive to allege a significant number of securities analysts followed and reported on a company’s stock during the class period.” Id. See also Teamsters Local 445 Freight Div. Pension Fund v. Bombardier, Inc., 546 F.3d 196, 205 (2d Cir. 2008) (“[T]he greater the number of securities analysts following and reporting on a company’s stock, the greater the likelihood that information released by a company is being relied upon by investors.”) (quoting In re Xcelera.com Sec. Litig., 430 F.3d 503, 514 (1st Cir. 2005)).

<sup>17</sup> “[I]t could be alleged the stock had numerous market makers. The existence of market makers and arbitrageurs would ensure completion of the market mechanism; these individuals would react swiftly to company news and reported financial results by buying or selling stock and driving it to a changed price level.” Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1286-87.

Related to arbitrage activity, some courts have also suggested that other factors may be relevant to determining whether a market is efficient for class-certification purposes, including the activity and number of institutional investors. For example, in In re Enron Corporation Securities, Derivative & “ERISA” Litigation, the court decided that the Enron bonds traded in efficient markets partially based on “data on institutional holdings . . . [that] there was active

- (4) the issuer's eligibility to file SEC Form S-3 and to incorporate by reference other SEC Forms.<sup>18</sup>

17. The court in Krogman suggested three additional operational factors:

- (1) the market capitalization of the stock;<sup>19</sup>
- (2) the bid-ask price spread;<sup>20</sup> and
- (3) the float of the stock (i.e., the amount of outstanding stock not held by insiders of the corporation).<sup>21</sup> trading . . . during the Class Period, [and] there were a substantial number of institutional investors.” 529 F. Supp. 2d 644, 756 (S.D. Tex. 2006).

“Consistent with the efficiency indicators used recently by the courts, the inefficient firms have lower mean trading volume, fewer market makers, lower analyst following, and lower institutional ownership (number and percentage) than efficient firms.” Brad M. Barber, Paul A. Griffin, and Baruch Lev, The Fraud-on-the-Market Theory and the Indicators of Common Stocks' Efficiency, 19 J. Corp. L., 285-312, 302 (Winter 1994) (footnote omitted and emphasis added).

<sup>18</sup> “[I]t would be helpful to allege the Company was entitled to file an S-3 Registration Statement in connection with public offerings or, if ineligible, such ineligibility was only because of timing factors rather than because the minimum stock requirements set forth in the instructions to Form S-3 were not met.” Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1287. See also id. at 1271 n.5 (“Generally speaking, it is the largest and most well-known companies which register equity securities on Form S-3”); id. at 1284 (“This form [S-3] is predicated on the Commission’s belief that the market operates efficiently for these companies, i.e., that the disclosure in Exchange Act reports and other communications by the registrant, such as press releases, has already been disseminated and accounted for by the market place.”) (quoting SEC Securities Act Release No. 6331, 46 FR 41,902 (1981)) (emphasis omitted).

<sup>19</sup> In Krogman, the court suggested that “[m]arket capitalization, calculated as the number of shares multiplied by the prevailing share price, may be an indicator of market efficiency because there is a greater incentive for stock purchasers to invest in more highly capitalized corporations.” 202 F.R.D. at 478.

<sup>20</sup> See Krogman, 202 F.R.D. at 478 (“A large bid-ask spread is indicative of an inefficient market, because it suggests that the stock is too expensive to trade.”).

<sup>21</sup> Insiders cannot freely trade in the stock of their firm based on their privileged, nonpublic information. They are subject to both trading restrictions (blackout periods, and restrictions of Rule 10b-5 and Exchange Act Sections 16(b) and 16(c)) and the reporting requirements of Section 16(a). See 17 C.F.R. § 240.10b-5 (2011); 15 U.S.C. §§ 78p(b), 78p(c), 78p(a) (2011). “In determining efficiency, courts also consider the percentage of shares held by the public, rather than insiders.” Krogman, 202 F.R.D. at 478.

2. Price-Related Factors Employed to Evaluate Whether a Security Trades in an Efficient Market

18. The price-related factors are used to examine whether the market price for the common stock rapidly reflects unanticipated material information about the Company's discounted future cash flows as would be expected in an efficient market.<sup>22</sup>

19. To examine the market efficiency of Signet stock, I test whether:

- (1) there is a rapid price reaction to new information relevant to the valuation of the common stock;<sup>23</sup> and
- (2) there are certain statistical properties associated with common stock price movements, such as the lack of persistent and systematic autocorrelation.<sup>24</sup>

3. Flexibility When Evaluating Operational and Price-Related Factors

20. Professor Fama's conclusion that "precise inferences about the degree of market efficiency are likely to remain impossible," as well as other academic research in economics and finance, support an approach whereby the above factors should be used as a basket of indicators of the efficiency of the security, but by no means is it necessary that each factor in that basket offer support. Judicial analysis of market efficiency reflects this recognition. For instance, the Second Circuit recently held that market efficiency may be

<sup>22</sup> "An efficient market is one which rapidly reflects new information in price." Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1276 n.17 (citing Bromberg & Lowenfels, 4 Securities Fraud and Commodities Fraud, § 8.6 (Aug. 1988)).

<sup>23</sup> "[I]t would be helpful to a plaintiff seeking to allege an efficient market to allege empirical facts showing a cause and effect relationship between unexpected corporate events or financial releases and an immediate response in the stock price." Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1287.

<sup>24</sup> "Autocorrelation is usually found in time-series data. Economic time series often display a 'memory' in that variation is not independent from one period to the next." William H. Greene, Econometric Analysis 358 (2d ed. 1993). In other words, autocorrelation is the measurement of the relationship between the security return at time t and the return of the same security at some fixed time in the past. First-order autocorrelation would be found when there is a statistically significant relationship between the common stock return today and the common stock return yesterday. Another way of looking at this concept is that if an observer can use the return from yesterday to predict with some level of certainty the return today, there exists autocorrelation. The absence of autocorrelation is an indicator of market efficiency. See Lehocky v. Tidel Techs., Inc., 220 F.R.D. 491, 506-507 n.20 (S.D. Tex. 2004) (noting that both parties' experts agreed on the helpfulness of an autocorrelation analysis).

demonstrated where the operational factors support that conclusion, even if the price-related factor does not.<sup>25</sup> In so holding, the Court noted, “The Cammer and Krogman factors are simply tools to help district courts analyze market efficiency in determining whether the Basic presumption of reliance applies in class certification decision-making. But they are no more than tools in arriving at that conclusion, and certain factors will be more helpful than others in assessing particular securities and particular markets for efficiency.”<sup>26</sup>

21. In any case, whether or not the court relies solely on the Cammer factors, it has been suggested that “...the presence or absence of any one Cammer factor is not Indeed, not even the Cammer court considered the fifth factor necessary, stating only that it would be helpful to a plaintiff seeking to allege an efficient market.”) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); id. at *34 (“Different contexts require courts to place greater importance on some factors than on others. No other court has adopted a per se rule that any one factor is dispositive. At the same time, courts have found market efficiency in the absence of an event study or where the event study was not definitive.”); id. at *49 (“It is widely accepted that analysis of the Cammer and Krogman factors is a reliable and accepted methodology for establishing market efficiency.”) (footnote omitted); In re Countrywide Financial Corporation Securities Litigation, 273 F.R.D. 586, 610 (C.D. Cal. 2009) (“Here, the Cammer factors (and some other factors generally approved by courts following Cammer) inform the parties’ efficiency arguments.”); id. at 613 (“The five Cammer factors are nonexclusive; courts regularly consider other factors that are reasonable under the circumstances as well. The factors are an analytic tool, not a checklist.”) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); Mark Smilovits, et al. v. First Solar, Inc., et al., 295 F.R.D. 423, 427 (D. Ariz. 2013) (“The Ninth Circuit has not articulated the applicable standard of proof for the Rule 23 requirements, but at least four circuits have adopted a preponderance of the evidence standard. This standard appears to be the trend in federal courts, and merely requires that plaintiffs demonstrate that it is more likely than not that a particular requirement of Rule 23 has been satisfied.”) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted); id. at 437 (“In weighing this evidence, the Court finds it significant that Plaintiffs have shown without dispute that three of the five Cammer factors are satisfied, that another is partially satisfied, and that the stock traded on the NASDAQ. Defendants’ evidence that the third Cammer factor is partially unsatisfied, and the stand-off on the fifth Cammer factor, simply do not outweigh Plaintiffs’ evidence, even if the fifth factor is considered most important. The Court therefore concludes that Plaintiffs have shown market efficiency by a preponderance of the evidence that the fraud on the market theory is warranted in this case, and that common issues will predominate in light of the fraud on the market theory of reliance.”).

determinative of market efficiency.”<sup>27</sup> Accordingly, my empirical support includes all the Cammer and related Krogman factors. As described below, in forming my opinion in this matter that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period, I have considered each of these operational and price-related factors, and in combination the quantitative and empirical evidence related to the Cammer and Krogman factors overwhelmingly supports the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an open, well-developed and efficient market throughout the Class Period.

V. ANALYSIS OF OPERATIONAL FACTORS OF SIGNET COMMON STOCK

A. Background

22. In its SEC Form 10-K for fiscal year ended February 1, 2014, Signet described itself as follows:

Signet is the largest specialty retail jeweler by sales in the US and UK. ...

Signet’s US division operated 1,471 stores in all 50 states at February 1, 2014. Its stores trade nationally in malls and off-mall locations as Kay Jewelers (“Kay”), and regionally under a number of well- established mall- based brands. Destination superstores trade nationwide as Jared The Galleria Of Jewelry (“Jared”). ...

Signet’s UK division operated 493 stores at February 1, 2014, including 14 stores in the Republic of Ireland and three in the Channel Islands. Its stores trade in major regional shopping malls and prime High Street’ locations (main shopping thoroughfares with high pedestrian traffic) as “H.Samuel,” “Ernest Jones,” and “Leslie Davis.”<sup>28</sup>

Signet’s results principally derive from one business segment the retailing of jewelry, watches and associated services. The business is managed as two geographical reportable segments: the US division (84% of sales and 93% of operating income) and the UK division (16% of sales and 7% of operating income).<sup>29</sup>

23. In May 2014, Signet acquired Zale Corporation and, according to its SEC Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended January 31, 2015:

Prior to the Acquisition, the Company managed its business as two geographical reportable segments, being the United States of America (the “US”) and the United Kingdom (the “UK”) divisions. In connection with the [Zale] Acquisition, the Company no longer manages its business geographically, but by store brand grouping, a description of which follows:

- The Sterling Jewelers division, formerly the US division, operated 1,504 stores in all 50 states at January 31, 2015. Its stores operate nationally in malls and off- mall locations as Kay Jewelers (“Kay”), and regionally under a number of well-established mall- based brands. Destination superstores operate nationwide as Jared The Galleria Of Jewelry (“Jared”). Signet acquired Ultra Stores, Inc. (“Ultra”) on October 29, 2012 (“Ultra Acquisition”). The majority of the Ultra stores acquired were converted to the Kay brand during Fiscal 2014.

- The Zale division consists of two reportable segments:

Zale Jewelry, which operated 972 jewelry stores at January 31, 2015, is located primarily in shopping malls throughout the US, Canada and Puerto Rico. Zale Jewelry includes national brands Zales Jewelers, Zales Outlet and Peoples Jewellers, along with regional brands Gordon’s Jewelers and Mappins Jewellers. Piercing Pagoda, which operated 605 mall-based kiosks at January 31, 2015, is located primarily in shopping malls throughout the US and Puerto Rico.

- The UK Jewelry division, formerly the UK division, operated 498 stores at January 31, 2015. Its stores operate in major regional shopping malls and prime ‘High Street’ locations (main shopping thoroughfares with high pedestrian traffic) as “H.Samuel,” “Ernest Jones” and “Leslie Davis.”<sup>30</sup>

25. Throughout the Class Period, Signet common stock's principal trading market was the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE") under the "SIG" trading symbol.<sup>32</sup> Signet also maintained a "standard listing" of its common shares on the London Stock Exchange ("LSE") until March 15, 2016:

On February 16, 2016, the Company filed a voluntary application with the United Kingdom's Financial Conduct Authority to delist its common shares from the London Stock Exchange ("LSE"). Signet took this action as a result of less than 1% of the Company's annual trading volume being executed on the LSE. As a result, the benefit of LSE listing was outweighed by the monetary expense, regulatory burdens and time spent on LSE-driven activity. Common shares of the Company continued to trade on the LSE until close of business on March 15, 2016.<sup>33</sup>

On August 29, 2013 (the first day of the Class Period), Signet had 80.5 million shares outstanding.<sup>35</sup> Signet repurchased shares throughout the Class Period, including repurchasing 1.6 million in the fiscal year ending February 1, 2014, 0.3 million for the fiscal year ending January 31, 2015, 1.0 million for the fiscal year ending January 30, 2016,

B. Analysis of the Operational Factors

1. *Cammer Factor I – Average Weekly Turnover

28. The first operational factor is the average weekly turnover of a security. As discussed in the Cammer opinion: “Turnover measured by average weekly trading of two percent or more of the outstanding shares would justify a strong presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one; one percent would justify a substantial presumption.”<sup>38</sup> A high trading volume indicates substantial investor interest in the security, and thus increases the likelihood that newly-available public and private information will be rapidly incorporated in the security price through trading.<sup>39</sup> In addition, high volume suggests the possibility that investors will, all other factors staying constant, be able to reap greater profits from any information they may possess because they can more easily participate in the market. This greater profit opportunity from the information they may possess then encourages investors to make greater investments in information gathering and processing. This, in turn, will enhance the informational efficiency of the market.<sup>40</sup>

Karpoff, The Relation between Price Changes and Trading Volume: A Survey, 22 J. of Fin. and Quantitative Analysis, 109 (1987) at 112, 109-126 (1987) surveys the literature on trading volume and absolute price changes. Karpoff documents that higher volume results in greater absolute stock price reactions. See also, Brad M. Barber, Paul A. 29. To reliably determine whether the turnover fulfills the Cammer criterion, I calculated average weekly turnover over the Class Period, which is equal to the average of the ratio of weekly volume divided by the shares outstanding for that week.<sup>41</sup>

30. Exhibit I contains the results of this analysis and shows that for the Class Period a total of 1.528 billion shares traded hands with an average daily volume of 1.34 million shares. The ratio of the average weekly volume to shares outstanding was 9.2% – more than 4.5 times the 2% threshold that Cammer held “would justify a strong presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one”<sup>42</sup> — and the median was 7.0%.<sup>43</sup> This analysis therefore easily “justif[ies] a strong presumption that the market for the security is an efficient one.”<sup>44</sup>

31. Not only is Signet’s average weekly turnover more than 4.5 times the level that supports a “strong presumption” of efficiency under Cammer, but the average weekly turnover measures here are greater than the turnover measures calculated in other litigation where the courts found the common stock to trade in an efficient market.<sup>45</sup> The relatively high average weekly turnover of Signet common stock provides substantial evidence supporting the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

<sup>43</sup> These figures include the entire weeks of the start date and end date of the Class Period. In Exhibit I, I also provide the analysis excluding the weeks that include the start and end dates of the Class Period, which results in a similar median weekly turnover of 6.9% and a slightly lower average turnover of 8.9%.

Litig.*, 253 F.R.D. 266, 280 (S.D.N.Y. 2008) (finding that an average weekly trading volume of 4.3% of the company’s outstanding shares was sufficient to establish market efficiency, noting that the volume exceeded the 1-2% standard).

2. Cammer Factor II – Analyst Coverage

32. The second operational factor is the number of security analysts who followed and reported on Signet’s common stock. As discussed in Cammer: “It would be persuasive to allege a significant number of securities analysts followed and reported on a company’s stock during the class period.”<sup>46</sup> As more analysts follow and report on a company’s securities, more information about the company is disseminated to a greater number of investors. The presence of such professionals means that more information is likely to be reflected in the price of these securities either through increased trading or simply through revaluation of the securities by the market participants.<sup>47</sup>

33. As Exhibit II shows, during the Class Period there were between 13 and 20 research analysts following the Company as recorded by Bloomberg, with an average of 16 research analysts during the Class Period. Further, between 5 and 19 research analysts were part of the Thomson Reuters I/B/E/S consensus EPS estimate for the current fiscal year, with an average of 13.<sup>48</sup> Based on the reports available on the S&P Capital IQ and Thomson Eikon databases, I identified the following entities among others, that issued in-depth research reports: Barclays; BofA Merrill Lynch; Brean Capital, LLC; Buckingham Research Group Inc.; C.L. King & Associates; Citigroup Inc.; Compass Point Research &

Brennan, Narasimhan Jegadeesh, and Bhaskaran Swaminathan, Investment Analysis and the Adjustment of Stock Prices to Common Information, 6 Rev. of Fin. Stds. 799, 800 (1993). (“Recent theory suggests that the number of analysts may have an effect on the speed of adjustment to new information . . . . Trading, LLC; Cowen and Company; Deutsche Bank; Gordon Haskett; JP Morgan; Morningstar, Inc.; Northcoast Research; RBC Capital Markets; Stephens Inc.; Sterne Agee & Leach; UBS; and Wells Fargo Securities, LLC. Further, I have identified 25 technical analyst firms that covered Signet and reported results.<sup>49</sup> Thus, there were at least 48 analysts reporting on Signet. See Exhibit III-A for a listing of the analysts with the number of reports each year. This exhibit shows that there were 191 reports published from August 29, 2013 until December 31, 2013; 276 reports published in 2014; 272 reports published in 2015, 327 reports published in 2016; 306 reports published in 2017; and 54 reports published January 1, 2018 through March 14, 2018.

34. The substantial coverage of Signet's stock by analysts can also be observed in analysts' participation in conference calls held by Signet. Many of these analysts participated in the regular earnings calls Signet hosted in conjunction with the release of its quarterly financial results, as well as operational updates. In addition, Signet as well as many of these analysts hosted investor conferences throughout the Class Period+. Signet held 19 earnings calls, as well as other conference calls and meetings during the Class Period+. <sup>50</sup> On the conference calls, analysts and other investors were able to ask questions about Signet, with an average of over eight analysts asking questions on each call. See Exhibit III-B for a list of analysts who asked questions on Signet conference calls.<sup>51</sup> There were also 13 investor conferences hosted by analysts and three ICR Exchange Conferences<sup>52</sup> during the Class Period at which Signet participated. See Exhibit III-C for a list of analysts hosting investor conferences at which Signet participated.

Transcripts for earnings calls on 8/29/2013, 11/26/2013, and 3/27/2014 are not available on Bloomberg. For other conferences hosted by Signet, only the transcript for the 6/24/2015 investor conference is available on Bloomberg.

It's a forum for exchanging insights into current

35. The number of analysts following Signet compares favorably to the number following other defendant companies at issue in other matters, in which the courts concluded that the common stock traded in efficient markets.<sup>53</sup> In addition, I have examined the number of research analysts following all the common stocks on the NYSE and NASDAQ at the end of each year from December 31, 2013 through December 29, 2017. For these approximately 3,200 companies the average and median number of research analysts covering the companies was 10 and 7, respectively, as compared to 17 for Signet.<sup>54</sup> Overall, during the Class Period, Signet's analyst coverage was in the 80th percentile of all NYSE and NASDAQ common stocks, on average. This means that the number of analysts following Signet was greater than 80% of the common stocks on the NYSE and NASDAQ.<sup>55</sup>

36. In addition to the analyst reports, there were numerous press releases, news stories and other media coverage of Signet throughout the 1,143-day Class Period+. (See Appendix C for a chronology of information releases.) I found over 6,000 articles (including over 1,300 articles from Bloomberg and over 5,400 from Factiva<sup>56</sup>) that

Flamel Techs., S.A.*, 281 F.R.D. 150, 153-54 (S.D.N.Y. 2012) (“Billhofer”) (finding that eight separate firms issuing reports about Flamel and four additional firms participating in investor conference and more than two dozen articles and press releases being published about Flamel was sufficient to favor a finding of market efficiency).

<sup>54</sup> The statistics for Signet and other NYSE and NASDAQ common stocks in this analysis is the average of five observations at the end of each year from December 31, 2013 through December 29, 2017.

<sup>55</sup> For this analysis, I compared Signet's analyst coverage to that of the common stocks on the NYSE or NASDAQ as of December 31, 2013 through December 29, 2017 that have a Bloomberg “Security Type” of “common stock” and “Primary Security Composite Exchange Code” of “US” (the number of members range from 3,133 to 3,327. The Bloomberg data obtained for each member was “Total Analyst Recommendations.”

discussed Signet.<sup>57</sup> Other articles may still be available from additional sources (e.g., by searching Google, Yahoo, etc.).

37. Finally, as a public company, Signet was required to file numerous information disclosures in SEC forms that contain new and possibly material information (e.g., 10-K, 10-Q, Proxy and Registration forms) and others that were related to material changes in the Company (e.g., 8-K).

38. The continuous coverage of Signet by analysts, investment professionals, public press, and financial institutions, along with regular and frequent disclosures by the Company in the form of press releases and SEC filings, provides evidence supporting the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

3. Cammer Factor III – Market Makers and Arbitrageurs

39. The next operational factor is the presence of market makers and arbitrageurs. As discussed in Cammer, “[t]he existence of market makers and arbitrageurs would ensure completion of the market mechanism; these individuals would react swiftly to company news and reported financial results by buying or selling stock and driving it to a changed price level.”<sup>58</sup> This factor, as suggested by the Cammer court, related to a stock that was traded in the 1980’s over-the-counter market or on the early version of NASDAQ (which, at the time, was not a national exchange, but instead was a reporting network in which transactions in securities are reported to the National Association of Securities Dealers for publication).<sup>59</sup> The Cammer court understood that the market-making infrastructure of a stock market is indicative of its efficiency.<sup>60</sup>

40. As explained below, consideration of this factor supports a finding of market efficiency for Signet stock because: (a) the stock was traded on the NYSE; (b) was actively traded by a large group of sophisticated investors;<sup>61</sup> and (c) there were opportunities for arbitrage.<sup>62</sup>

a) Trading on the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE)

41. Signet was listed on the NYSE during the Class Period. The NYSE assigns a Designated Market Maker (DMM) to each security traded on the NYSE.<sup>63</sup> The NYSE uses these well-capitalized DMMs to facilitate fair and orderly trading.<sup>64</sup> The structure of the NYSE, including the DMM system, in combination with the requirements for being

The cornerstone of the NYSE market model is the Designated Market Maker (DMM). DMMs have obligations to maintain fair and orderly markets for their assigned securities. They operate both manually and electronically to facilitate price discovery during market opens, closes and during periods of trading imbalances or instability. This high touch approach is crucial for offering the best prices, dampening volatility, adding liquidity and enhancing value.

DMMs apply their market experience and judgment of dynamic trading conditions, macroeconomic news and industry-specific intelligence, to inform their decisions. A valuable resource for our listed company community, DMMs offer insights, while making capital commitments, maintaining market integrity, and supporting price discovery.

Designated Market Makers, <https://www.nyse.com/market-model> (last visited March 11, 2019).

<sup>64</sup> According to the NYSE: “The NYSE’s unique market model combines leading technology with human judgment to prioritize price discovery and stability over speed for our listed companies. Coupled with our electronic markets, we believe nothing can take the place of human insight and accountability. It’s the human element at NYSE that results in lower volatility, deeper liquidity and improved prices.” Market Model, <https://www.nyse.com/market-model> (last visited March 11, 2019).

listed,<sup>65</sup> leads to the presumption by economists and the courts that common stocks traded on the NYSE trade in an efficient market.<sup>66</sup> As Cammer itself explained,

We think that, at a minimum, there should be a presumption – probably conditional for class determination – that certain markets are developed and efficient for virtually all the securities traded there: the New York and American Stock Exchanges, the Chicago Board Options Exchange and the NASDAQ National Market System.<sup>67</sup>

42. Therefore, the fact that Signet was listed on the NYSE provides evidence that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

b) Arbitrageurs and Institutional Holdings

43. As noted above, some courts have also considered the number and activity of institutional investors, as well as the proportion of their holdings of the common stock as evidence of market efficiency.<sup>68</sup> Exhibit IV lists 1,126 institutions that filed SEC Form 13F and other documents, disclosing the combined sizes of their beneficial and non-beneficial ownership positions of Signet common stock during the Class Period.<sup>69</sup> These data show that “there was active trading . . . during the Class Period, [and] there were a substantial number of institutional investors,”<sup>70</sup> including a large group of sophisticated investors, institutional investors and investment advisors, who participated in the market for Signet common stock either on their own behalf or on behalf of other beneficial owners. Further, the top 20 largest institutional holders of Signet common stock (in terms of relative size), as of either December 31, 2013, December 31, 2014, December 31, 2015, December 31, 2016, or December 31, 2017, held a large proportion of the public float (I also report the position relative to outstanding shares). See Exhibit V. This exhibit shows that the aggregate positions of these 52 institutions held between 63% and 87% of the public float (and between 62% and 86% of the outstanding shares) as of the listed dates.

<sup>69</sup> For securities traded on major U.S. exchanges, such as the NYSE, NASDAQ and AMEX, S&P Capital IQ gathers institutional ownership information via Form 13F filings and other sources. An institutional investment manager is an entity that either invests in, or buys and sells, securities for its own account. For example, banks, insurance companies, and broker/dealers are institutional investment managers. So are corporations and pension funds that manage their own investment portfolios. An institutional investment manager is also a natural person or an entity that exercises investment discretion over the account of any other natural person or entity. For example, an investment adviser that manages private accounts, mutual fund assets, or pension plan assets is an institutional investment manager. So is the trust department of a bank. A trustee is an institutional investment manager, but a natural person who exercises investment discretion over his or her own account is not an institutional investment manager.” U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, Division of Investment Management: Frequently Asked Questions About Form 13F, March 15, 2017, <http://www.sec.gov/divisions/investment/13ffaq.htm> (last visited March 11, 2019).

further evidence that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.<sup>71</sup>

c) Arbitrage Opportunities and Short Interest

45. Some courts have also examined the issue of arbitrage opportunities by considering whether there is an availability of shares to borrow in order to enter into a short sale.<sup>72</sup> Short selling enables market participants to trade on their perceived negative information about the company even if they do not hold a long position in the stock. Thus, short selling assists in arbitrage activity when it is believed by investors that the stock is possibly mispriced and too high. Short selling activity can therefore impact market prices and efficiency because it enables all traders who believe the price is going to decline, even if they do not hold a long position, to sell and possibly affect market prices.

46. The amount of short interest in Signet common stock during the Class Period ranged from 0.8 million shares to 16.1 million shares, with an average short interest of 5.7 million shares. As a percentage of shares outstanding, short interest ranged from 1.0% to 26.6% and, as a percentage of public float, short interest ranged from 1.0% to 26.7%. See Exhibit VI. This elastic supply and demand as shown by the relatively wide range of short interest suggests that arbitrageurs and traders with negative views on Signet were able to remain active. The fact that there was arbitrage and trading activity provides further evidence that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

4. Cammer Factor IV – SEC Form S-3 Eligibility

47. Eligibility to register securities on SEC Form S-3 is another factor in the analysis of market efficiency.<sup>73</sup> To be eligible to register on Form S-3, an issuer must (a)

<sup>73</sup> “Fourth, as discussed, it would be helpful to allege the Company was entitled to file an S-3 Registration Statement in connection with public offerings or, if ineligible, such ineligibility was only because of timing factors rather than because the minimum stock requirements set forth in the instructions to Form S-3 were not met.” Cammer, 711 F. Supp. at 1285, 1287.

be current in its SEC filings for at least 12 months and (b) have a public float of $75 million.<sup>74</sup>

48. The significance of this particular factor is underscored by the SEC's explanation of the rationale for permitting certain companies to incorporate by reference the companies' other SEC filings in the Form S-3 (or S-4) registration statement: "This form [S-3 or S-4] is predicated on the Commission's belief that the market operates efficiently for these companies, i.e., that the disclosure in Exchange Act reports and other communications by the registrant, such as press releases, has already been disseminated and accounted for by the market place."<sup>75</sup> Implicit in the SEC's allowing firms to file "by reference" is that the information in the other sources and other SEC filings is widely disseminated, and that the security trades in an efficient market.

49. At all times throughout the Class Period, Signet easily met the public float threshold. Indeed, on average, Signet's public float was more than 97 times the required threshold. In addition, during the Class Period, Signet filed SEC Forms S-3ASR on May 12, 2014 and November 7, 2016.<sup>76</sup>

50. Thus, this Cammer Factor provides further evidence supporting the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

C. Other Operational Factors to Weigh When Examining Market Efficiency

51. In addition to the operational Cammer factors evaluated above, I have also considered additional operational factors that have sometimes been considered by courts. As with the operational Cammer factors, these additional operational factors support my conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

1. Krogman Factor – Market Capitalization

52. In Krogman, the court stated that “[m]arket capitalization, calculated as the number of shares multiplied by the prevailing share price, may be an indicator of market efficiency because there is a greater incentive for stock purchasers to invest in more highly capitalized corporations.”<sup>77</sup>

53. At the start of the Class Period, Signet’s market capitalization was $5.4 billion, and peaked at $12.0 billion.<sup>78</sup> Throughout the Class Period Signet’s market capitalization averaged over $7.3 billion. See Exhibit VII.

54. Signet’s market capitalization compares favorably to the market capitalization of defendant companies in other matters, where the courts concluded that the common stock traded in efficient markets.<sup>79</sup>

55. In addition, on average over the Class Period, Signet’s market capitalization as compared to other NYSE and NASDAQ listed common stocks placed it in the 84th percentile. This means that Signet’s market capitalization was greater than 84% of the common stocks on the NYSE and NASDAQ.<sup>80</sup> On August 29, 2013, the start of the Class

<sup>78</sup> Based on the $67.00 closing price and approximately 80.529 million shares outstanding as of August 29, 2013, and the $150.94 closing price and approximately 79.592 million shares outstanding as of October 30, 2015.

<sup>79</sup> Certification has been granted in many class action securities matters where the market capitalization of defendant companies is far lower than the average market capitalization of Signet. See, e.g., In re DVI, Inc. Securities Litigation, 249 F.R.D. 196 (E.D. Pa. 2008), which was affirmed by the Third Circuit. In re DVI, Inc. Securities Litigation, 639 F.3d 623 (3d Cir. 2011), (“The market capitalization of DVI during the Class Period ranged between $300 million to $12 million, following DVI’s negative disclosures.”); Radient, 287 F.R.D. 563, 574 (“The value of stock held by non-affiliates ranged from $29.5 million to $73.1 million during the Class Period.”); In Re Netbank, Inc. Securities Litig., 259 F.R.D. 656, 672 (N.D. Ga. 2009), (“market capitalization rates range from $246,386,421.36 to $432,150,737.31”); Pennsylvania Ave. Funds v. Inyx Inc., No. 08 CIV. 6857 PKC, 2011 WL 2732544, at *9 (S.D.N.Y. July 5, 2011) (“the market capitalization was consistently in excess of $22.4 million throughout the Class Period.”)

<sup>80</sup> For this analysis, I compared Signet’s market capitalization to that of the common stocks on the NYSE or NASDAQ at the end of each year from 2013 through 2017 that have a Bloomberg “Security Type” of “common stock” and “Primary Security Composite Exchange Code” of

Period, Signet's market capitalization as compared to other NYSE and NASDAQ common stocks placed it in the 84th percentile. This means that Signet's market capitalization was greater than 84% of the common stocks on the NYSE and NASDAQ.<sup>81</sup> Further, for an additional comparison, on October 30, 2015, the peak of Signet's market capitalization, Signet's market capitalization as compared to other NYSE and NASDAQ common stocks placed it in the 90th percentile. This means that Signet's market capitalization was greater than 90% of the common stocks on the NYSE and NASDAQ.<sup>82</sup> Finally, on March 13, 2018, the end of the Class Period, Signet's market capitalization as compared to other NYSE and NASDAQ common stocks placed it in the 71st percentile.<sup>83</sup> This means that Signet's market capitalization was greater than 71% of the common stocks on the NYSE and NASDAQ.

2. Krogman Factor – The Size of the Float of Signet Common Stock

56. Float or public float refers to the number of shares of Signet stock that are not held by insiders of the corporation.<sup>84</sup> Consequently, a larger float relative to the total number of outstanding shares of Signet stock indicates there are a large proportion of Signet shares that are available to non-insiders who can trade without restrictions and profit by trading on new information to the marketplace.

"US" (the number of members range from 3,780 to 3,973). The Bloomberg data obtained for each member was "Current Market Cap."

<sup>81</sup> For this analysis, I compared Signet's market capitalization to that of the 3,756 common stocks on the NYSE or NASDAQ as of August 29, 2013 that have a Bloomberg "Security Type" of "common stock" and "Primary Security Composite Exchange Code" of "US." The Bloomberg data obtained for each member was "Current Market Cap."

<sup>82</sup> For this analysis, I compared Signet's market capitalization to that of the 3,976 common stocks on the NYSE or NASDAQ as of October 30, 2015 that have a Bloomberg "Security Type" of "common stock" and "Primary Security Composite Exchange Code" of "US." The Bloomberg data obtained for each member was "Current Market Cap."

<sup>83</sup> For this analysis, I compared Signet's market capitalization to that of the 3,811 common stocks on the NYSE or NASDAQ as of March 13, 2018 that have a Bloomberg "Security Type" of "common stock" and "Primary Security Composite Exchange Code" of "US." The Bloomberg data obtained for each member was "Current Market Cap."

57. On average, insiders held 0.27 million or 0.4% of the average shares outstanding during the Class Period.<sup>85</sup> The public float ranged from approximately 99.4% to 99.8% of Signet's shares. The large proportion of Signet shares held by the public provides further evidence that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

3. Krogman Factor – Bid-Ask Spread

58. The size of the bid-ask spread (i.e., ask quote minus bid quote) for a stock in the market is an indication of the liquidity in the market, and courts have considered it as a factor in determining whether the security trades in an efficient market. In Krogman, the court stated that, “[a] large bid-ask spread is indicative of an inefficient market, because it suggests that the stock is too expensive to trade.”<sup>86</sup>

59. Using daily closing bid and ask quotes, I calculated the percent bid-ask spread for Signet common stock. The percent bid-ask spread was calculated as (i) the ask quote less the bid quote divided by (ii) the average of the bid and ask quotes. Exhibit VIII contains the results of the bid-ask spread analysis for each day of the Class Period. The average daily percent spread for Signet common stock was 0.03%. The daily average dollar spread was three cents.

60. These numbers compare favorably to the findings of the courts in other matters, where the courts concluded that the common stocks traded in efficient markets.<sup>87</sup> Further, they also compare favorably to academic research, which showed that in 2009 the bid-ask CRSP-based average spreads for all NYSE and AMEX stocks were 1.03%, while for all NASDAQ stocks the average spread was 2.55%.<sup>88</sup> By comparison, the average daily spread for Signet common stock was approximately one fortieth the size of the NYSE spreads and one hundredth the size of the NASDAQ spreads.

<sup>87</sup> See Radiant, 287 F.R.D. 563, 574 (C.D. Cal. 2012) (finding a much larger bid-ask spread of 0.58 percent supported market efficiency); In re Scientific-Atlanta, 571 F. Supp. 2d 1315, 1339 (N.D. Ga. 2007) (finding that a bid-ask spread that “never exceeded 1.9%” weighed heavily in favor of market efficiency); Cheney v. Cyberguard Corp., 213 F.R.D. 484, 501 (S.D. Fla. 2003) (finding that average daily relative bid-ask spread of 2.44% weighed in favor of market efficiency).

61. In addition, I have examined the bid-ask spreads over five years from December 31, 2013 to December 29, 2017 for all the common stocks on the NYSE and NASDAQ. The mean bid-ask spread for the five years for the approximately 3,850 companies was 0.68%, which was almost 35 times larger than Signet's bid-ask spread during the Class Period. Overall, Signet's bid-ask spread was in the 10th percentile of all NYSE and NASDAQ common stocks, on average, over the Class Period, which means that Signet's bid-ask spread was narrower than 90% of the common stocks on the NYSE and NASDAQ.<sup>89</sup>

62. The size of the bid-ask spread of Signet common stock is further evidence supporting the conclusion that it traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

VI. THE PRICE-RELATED FACTORS DESCRIBING MARKET EFFICIENCY OF SIGNET COMMON STOCK

A. Background

63. What is often referred to as the fifth Cammer factor is “a cause and effect relationship between unexpected corporate events or financial releases and an immediate response in the stock price.”<sup>90</sup> As stated in Cammer, “[o]ne of the most convincing ways to demonstrate [market] efficiency would be to illustrate, over time, a cause and effect

<sup>88</sup> Kee H. Chung and Hao Zhang, A Simple Approximation of Intraday Spreads Using Daily Data, 17 J. Fin. Markets, 94, Table 2 (2014). The paper compared data using closing CRSP (Center for Research in Security Prices) prices to intraday data and showed the spreads are very close. 2009 is the most recent year the authors examined.

<sup>89</sup> For this analysis, I compared Signet's bid-ask spread to that of the common stocks on the NYSE or NASDAQ as of the end of each year during the Class Period from December 31, 2013 through December 29, 2017 that have a Bloomberg “Security Type” of “common stock” and “Primary Security Composite Exchange Code” of “US” (the number of members ranged from 3,754 to 3,972). The Bloomberg data obtained for each member was daily closing “Bid Price” and “Ask Price.”

relationship between company disclosures and resulting movements in stock price.”<sup>91</sup> As the Krogman court also noted, “in an efficient market, a stock’s price remains relatively stable in the absence of news, and changes very rapidly as the market receives new and unexpected information.”<sup>92</sup>

64. Below I present empirical evidence that Signet common stock exhibits the type of cause and effect relationship described in Cammer and Krogman, supporting a conclusion of market efficiency. First, I compare the relationship between Signet common stock price movements on days when there are earnings announcements (referred to below as “news” days) to days when there are no company earnings announcements (referred to below as “no-news” days). Next, I demonstrate that there is no systematic and persistent statistically significant autocorrelation of Signet abnormal returns. This demonstrates that Signet’s common stock price reacted quickly to all types of news. Finally, although not necessary to support my conclusions as to the efficiency of the market for Signet common stock, I show that Signet’s stock price reacted to the alleged corrective disclosures, in a manner consistent with the type of response I would expect in an efficient market. Overall, the empirical results presented below support the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

B. Price Reaction Throughout the Class Period to Unexpected New Information

1. Event Study Methodology Used to Test for Cause and Effect

65. To detect whether the price of Signet common stock rapidly reacted to disclosures of important unanticipated information, I ran a series of empirical tests using the results from an event study. Event studies are widely used in academia, securities litigation matters and investment practices, and have been a standard statistical procedure used by financial economists for over thirty years. They are generally used to measure the reaction of market participants (and thus the stock price) to the disclosure of new information. In an event study, generally-accepted statistical methods are used to test whether a stock price movement on a particular date is statistically significant – i.e., is of

66. As is explained in detail in Appendix D, to determine whether the Signet stock price movement on any given date is statistically significant, I use generally-accepted econometric methods and specify a regression model that removes the outside influences on the stock price movement. I then compare the remaining or residual firm-specific portion of the stock price movement on the date in question to the typical or normal volatility of the company's stock.

67. Finally, as is typical in event studies performed in the context of class certification, I examine the relationship between the magnitudes of the abnormal returns, the statistical significance of those abnormal returns and the unexpected news related to the subject company. In Appendix C, I present the voluminous daily chronology including Signet common stock prices, returns, volumes, abnormal returns and levels of statistical significance along with any company news. This chronology also demonstrates the depth of the media coverage of Signet.<sup>93,94</sup> The abnormal returns and the measures of statistical significance are used in the analyses below.

<sup>93</sup> During the Class Period, numerous news stories about Signet appeared in leading financial publications, including Associated Press Newswires, Barron's, Bloomberg First Word, Bloomberg News, Business Wire, Dow Jones Institutional News, Investor's Business Daily, Reuters News, Reuters Significant Developments, The New York Times, and The Wall Street Journal. As discussed above, the broad dissemination of information about Signet through the media, analyst reports and regular SEC filings is itself evidence supporting the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market during the Class Period. See, e.g., In re HealthSouth Corp. Sec. Litig., 261 F.R.D. 616, 635 (N.D. Ala. 2009) ("The extensive coverage of HealthSouth in general and its bonds in particular by investment professionals, public media, and institutional investors reflects that HealthSouth notes traded in an efficient market.").

<sup>94</sup> For the Signet chronology, I compiled lists of SEC filings, analyst reports, and news articles from August 29, 2013 to March 14, 2018. I compiled the list of all of Signet's SEC filings from the SEC website. The list of analyst reports is based on reports available from the Thomson Eikon and Capital IQ electronic databases. This is not necessarily a comprehensive list of all analyst reports potentially issued on Signet. For news articles, I searched Bloomberg and Factiva. For Bloomberg, I used the ticker symbol "SIG" and searched for Bloomberg News, Bloomberg First Word, and Marketwired sources with "medium" relevance. For Factiva, I searched all sources for the company name of "Signet Jewelers, Ltd." To eliminate duplicate stories for each of the news providers (Bloomberg and Factiva), a news story was

2. Cause and Effect Analysis Examining Days with Earnings News versus Days without Earnings-News – Background

68. In an efficient market, each disclosure of unanticipated material information will be expected to have an impact on the security price. This is why the Cammer court concluded, “[I]t would be helpful to a plaintiff seeking to allege an efficient market to allege empirical facts showing a cause and effect relationship between unexpected corporate events or financial releases and an immediate response in the stock price.”<sup>95</sup> In securities litigation, the event study for a single firm as described in detail in Appendix D examines the impact on stock prices from a confluence of different types of information that is disclosed and disseminated. It is not unusual that over a class period the corporation will announce earnings, dividends, discoveries, new products, management changes, new issues of securities, lawsuits that it files, lawsuits filed against it, projections, regulatory changes that impact its business, and more.

69. In an efficient market, academic research finds that there will be some large price movements with no news,<sup>96</sup> and conversely, that there will be news without large price movements. For example, there will often be news without large price movements when a company announces earnings that are in line with expectations. In other words, the news may be important to investors, but the mix of information is not significant enough considered a duplicate and eliminated if it had exactly the same date, timestamp, headline, news source, and lead paragraph as another news story from the same provider.

<sup>96</sup> For example, in a 2002 study of the general stock market, Professor Fair observed that in the 4,417 trading days for the S&P 500 Index there were 220 days with abnormal returns. Of these days with significant returns, only 69 days had identifiable events or news. Thus, only 31.4 percent of the days had identifiable news, while 68.6 percent had no identifiable event or news. Notably, Prof. Fair did not conclude that the S&P 500 stocks traded in inefficient markets. See, Ray Fair, Events That Shook the Market, 75 Jnl. of Bus. 713, 714 (2002).

This result is also consistent with other studies, including an analysis that examined return predictability following large price changes and information releases. In this study the authors looked at all common stocks traded on the NYSE and AMEX from 1990 to 1992 and observed 23,459 events with large abnormal returns (i.e., days for one or more stocks with large price movements). After employing certain defined data filters, the final sample included 4,873 events. They found, “Approximately one-third of the events had public announcements.” Mahesh Pritamani and Vijay Singal, Return Predictability Following Large Price Changes and Information Releases, 25 Jnl. of Banking & Fin. 631, 635-636 (2001) (“Pritiman and Singal”).

to elicit a statistically significant stock price reaction. Similarly, when a company's disclosure misleads investors by concealing important information, the effect of the concealment of information that maintains the mix of information in the market would generally not result in a significant stock price movement.

70. Furthermore, there are unobserved factors that might lead to significant price movements without news. These factors include, among others, unobserved changes in the market's expectations, imperfections in the statistical methods employed to evaluate the systematic cause-and-effect relationships of a single firm over a given period of time, and private trading activity—for example, insider trading, trading in advance of an offering or portfolio rebalancing. These factors all might drive a large price response without a publicly observed cause.

71. Below I present empirical evidence that demonstrates that Signet common stock exhibits the type of cause and effect relationship described in Cammer and Krogman, supporting a conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market. I compare the relationship between Signet common stock price movements on days when there are company earnings announcements (referred to below as “news” days) to days when there are no company earnings announcements (referred to below as “no-news” days). Earnings disclosures typically (although not always) communicate valuation information. Such valuation information may or may not be material or unanticipated.<sup>97</sup> When selecting events for inclusion in an event study, it is that group of events as a whole that is characterized as having greater likelihood that there is material, unanticipated information that is disclosed as compared to all other days. One would not necessarily expect all of the individual events in a collective event study to have statistically significant returns.<sup>98</sup> In a collective event study, statistical tests examine whether the incidence rate of statistically significant returns is greater on high information flow days than the incidence rate on lesser or no-news days.

<sup>97</sup> There is a voluminous academic literature examining price responses to earnings releases. The pioneering work was completed by William H. Beaver, The Informational Content of Annual Earnings Announcements, 6 J. of Accounting Research 67 (1968). See also Daniella Acker, Implied Standard Deviations and Post-Earnings Announcement Volatility, 29 J. of Business, Finance and Accounting 429 (2002).

72. I use earnings disclosure dates because a company's financial results and forecasts are among the most important considerations market participants utilize in valuing the company's stock.<sup>99</sup> While not every earnings announcement communicates new, unexpected, and material valuation information, the academic and trade literature in finance notes that unanticipated material information is more frequently and more systematically disclosed on such announcement dates rather than on other dates. Indeed, earnings and revenue announcement dates are a highly studied area of the academic research related to news and price movements.

73. Accordingly, in order to objectively select "news dates" from the collection of Signet disclosures for use in my collective analysis, I examined dates on which Signet announced earnings, earnings guidance, and sales reports and compared Signet's common stock price movement on those dates to its movement on all other dates in the Class Period.<sup>100</sup>

<sup>99</sup> As mentioned above, there are a confluence of different types of material, unanticipated information that a company discloses that can impact a stock price. There is a large body of academic literature that studies these different types of non-earnings related information. In one of the earliest papers, the author states, "Other types of information available to investors may be important to their valuation of securities. For instance, the Wall Street Journal routinely reports company announcements of dividend increases, large product sales, earnings forecasts, acquisitions, construction projects, stock splits, labor strikes and quarterly earnings figures. Do these events affect the price, hence volatility, of companies' securities?" Dale Morse, Wall Street Journal Announcements and the Securities Markets, 38 Fin. Analysts Jnl. 69, 69 (1982). See also, Pritamani and Singal, 644-645 and Table 4, in which the authors "divide the public announcement sample into several subsamples based on the type of news. . . . Seven distinct types of announcements are listed . . ." They examine the price impact of seven categories of news, including: actual earnings announcements by management; forecast of earnings by management; analyst recommendations; capital structure related information (including stock/debt issues); restructuring related information; general business information (including product related information, business contracts, and joint ventures); and miscellaneous information.

<sup>100</sup> The use of such collective tests comparing price movements on news days to lesser or no-news days is widely used to assess market efficiency. See Paul A. Ferrillo, Frederick C. Dunbar, and David Tabak, The "Less Than" Efficient Capital Markets Hypothesis: Requiring More Proof from Plaintiffs in Fraud-on-the-Market Cases, 78 St. John's L. Rev. 81 (2004).

3. Cause and Effect Analysis Examining Days with Earnings News versus All Other Days

74. To begin, I have taken all 1,143 dates within the Class Period+ and categorized each date based on: (i) the observed relationships between the statistical significance/insignificance of the abnormal returns; and (ii) whether or not the date is an earnings, preliminary earnings, or holiday season sales report date. I calculate the number and percentage of days in each of these categories based on Signet news releases and the abnormal returns derived from the regression results in Appendix E.

75. To minimize the possibility of including certain dates that might be considered to distort my results, I start with the 1,143 days in the Class Period+ and eliminate those dates where there are corrective disclosures (including the date that is both a corrective disclosure and an earnings date). This leaves me with 1,132 dates for my analysis of news dates versus non-news dates.

76. Of these 1,132 days, there are 19 days throughout the Class Period when there are earnings, preliminary earnings, or holiday season sales announcements. I use this subset of dates as news dates where, as explained above, my objective criteria suggest that there could have been—although not necessarily that there would have been—announcements of unanticipated, material news.<sup>101</sup> Therefore, out of the 1,132 examined days within the Class Period, approximately 1.7% (=19/1,132) of the days have such news releases. In Appendix E, I have also identified 96 dates with statistically significant abnormal returns during the Class Period+ of which 85 are included in the 1,132 examined days. Therefore, 7.5% (=85/1,132) of the days have statistically significant abnormal returns. The information is summarized in Exhibit IX, which shows that out of the 1,132 examined days in the Class Period+, there were 13 days with significant returns and news, and 72 days with significant returns and no news that meets my objective criteria.<sup>102</sup> There

<sup>101</sup> The 19 earnings, preliminary earnings, or holiday season sales news dates are: 8/29/2013; 11/26/2013; 1/9/2014; 3/27/2014; 5/22/2014; 8/28/2014; 11/25/2014; 1/8/2015; 3/26/2015; 5/28/2015; 8/27/2015; 1/7/2016; 2/29/2016; 3/24/2016; 11/22/2016; 1/11/2017; 3/9/2017; 8/24/2017; and 1/10/2018.

<sup>102</sup> It is expected in an event study where there are limited disclosures that there will be dates with no disclosure and statistically significant abnormal return. As explained in Hartzmark and are only 6 news days with non-significant returns, leaving 1,041 days with insignificant returns and no news.

77. I first test whether there was a statistically significant difference between the observed proportions of statistically significant abnormal returns on news days as compared to no-news days. Here, Signet's common stock price exhibited a statistically significant abnormal price reaction on 68% of news days (13 of 19), compared to just 6.5% of no-news days (72 of 1,113). Thus, I observe significant price movements on news days 10.6 times more frequently than I observe significant movements on no-news days. The difference between these two rates is highly statistically significant with a p-value of less than 0.0001 using Fisher's Exact Test.<sup>103</sup> Thus, with over 99.9% confidence, I can reject the hypothesis that Signet's stock price reacted no differently on news days (or those dates with expected greater information flow) than on all other days.

78. Using generally-accepted statistical methods and assuming there is no link between news and statistically significant returns (i.e., the relationship is randomly determined), I can also say that there is virtually zero chance of observing 13 days with abnormal returns when there is news.<sup>104</sup>

Seyhun (2012) at pp. 435-445, observing a significant abnormal return, but no news, is NOT evidence that the security trades in an inefficient market. For example, based on the fundamental properties of statistical models it is expected there will be approximately 5% of the dates with the bright line statistical significance of 5%. In this case the percentage is 7.5% or 85 dates. However, Signet disclosed news on only 19 dates based on the objective criteria, so the maximum number of dates with news is 19 days. Thus, because of the bright line statistical significance, the length of the Class Period+ and the fixed number of disclosures, by the construction of the empirical test, a minimum of 66 dates must have no disclosure and statistically significant abnormal returns.

<sup>104</sup> To test whether this hypothesis is a reasonable description of the actual world, I use a statistical method employing a generally-accepted approach called "bootstrap testing." Using this method, I have created test statistics to determine whether the observed relationships between Signet significant returns and news are likely to have been generated in a random fashion. If news is not linked to significant returns, then I would not expect there to be a statistically significant relationship that distinguishes those days when there is or is not news from those days when there are or are not significant returns. See Bradley Efron & Robert J. Tibshirani, An Introduction to the Bootstrap 1 (CRC Press LLC, 2d ed. 1998) (1993) ("The bootstrap is a recently developed technique for making certain kinds of statistical inference.").

79. Alternatively, I can use the statistical tests to ask and answer the question of what number and percentage of days I would have expected to find matching between news and a statistically significant abnormal return, if the two were unrelated. Applying these tests, I find that, if the news and the statistically significant abnormal returns were unrelated, I would expect to observe 1.4 days out of the 1,132 days when there is a significant abnormal return associated with an identifiable earnings, preliminary earnings, or holiday season sales announcement. Thus, the 13 days I observe is over nine times the expected number of days if there were no cause-and-effect relationship between stock returns and news.

80. These findings reject the hypothesis that, throughout the Class Period, Signet stock behaved no differently on news days than on all other days. They allow me to conclude that Signet-specific information and large price movements of Signet stock during the Class Period were related and cannot be attributed to random volatility, or to market or sector factors. This clearly provides substantial support for the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

4. Cause and Effect Analysis Examining Autocorrelation Throughout the Class Period

81. I have demonstrated above that Signet stock reacted to earnings news, as expected in an efficient market. Next, I demonstrate that it not only reacted as expected to earnings news, but that Signet's common stock price reacted quickly to all types of news. I demonstrate this by showing there is no persistent and systematic autocorrelation of Signet abnormal returns.

82. For this analysis, I conducted a statistical test to determine whether the daily abnormal returns of Signet common stock exhibit persistent and systematic autocorrelation using returns and lagged returns.<sup>105</sup> Autocorrelation is a statistical property of the series of returns of a security wherein tomorrow's security price movement can be systematically predicted with a reasonable degree of statistical certainty based solely on the security price movement today (or some period in the past). Some have argued that persistent and systematic statistically significant autocorrelation in the returns might indicate a violation of market efficiency in that it suggests that the security price does not react quickly, making available profit opportunities from naïve trading strategies that are sustained over time.

<sup>105</sup> "Autocorrelation is usually found in time-series data. Economic time series often display a 'memory' in that variation is not independent from one period to the next." Greene, supra note 24. In other words, autocorrelation is the measurement of the relationship between the security return at time t and the return of the same security at some fixed time in the past. First-order autocorrelation would be found when there is a statistically significant relationship between the common stock return today and the common stock return yesterday. Another way of looking

83. Because of the lengthy Class Period, for my statistical analysis of Signet abnormal stock returns for the 1,142 days of the Class Period I broke up the periods into yearlong periods— August 29, 2013 to August 28, 2014, etc. – except for the last period that included August 30, 2017 to March 13, 2018. For each year, I ran a standard statistical model by regressing each trading day's abnormal return on the abnormal return from the prior trading day. From this model, I derived five coefficients representing the measurement of the relationship between the abnormal current (i.e., today) and lagged (i.e., yesterday) returns, as well as the related t-statistic used to determine whether the autocorrelation was statistically significant. A t-statistic of 1.96 or above indicates a statistically significant relationship between yesterday's and today's abnormal returns.

84. In Exhibit X, I present the test results. For each period ended 2014, 2015, 2016 and 2018, I found that there was no statistically significant autocorrelation.<sup>106</sup> The period August 30, 2016 to August 29, 2017 does have statistically significant autocorrelation, as the coefficient is 0.16, with a t-statistic of 2.50. However, I found that this result is driven by two days during the period when there are large price movements. When I remove excess returns involving a single pair of dates – May 24, 2017 and May 25, 2017 (which I consider to be anomalous dates because there are two consecutive and distinct corrective disclosures), then the coefficient falls to 0.10 and the t-statistic is 1.65, which is no longer statistically significant. Therefore, these test results allow me to

at this concept is that if an observer can use the return from yesterday to predict with some level of certainty the return today, there exists autocorrelation. See Lehocky, 220 F.R.D. at 506-507 n.20 (noting that both parties' experts agreed on the helpfulness of autocorrelation); PolyMedica, 453 F. Supp. 2d at 276–78.

<sup>106</sup> The respective coefficients (and t-statistics) were 0.02 (0.34), -0.01 (-0.11), 0.09 (1.36), and 0.03 (0.32).

conclude that there is no persistent and systematic significant autocorrelation in the returns, which is consistent with the conclusion that Signet common stock reacts quickly to news and trades in an efficient market.

85. In summary, the autocorrelation statistical test I performed shows there is no persistent and systematic statistically significant autocorrelation for Signet abnormal returns, which along with the news/no-news tests above offer strong support that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

5. Analysis Examining Corrective Disclosure Dates

86. Although not necessary to support my conclusions as to the efficiency of the market for Signet common stock, I have been asked by Counsel to analyze whether Signet's stock price reacted to the alleged corrective disclosures in a way that is consistent with the results of my test of news versus no-news days and as would be expected of a stock that trades in an efficient market. In Appendix C and Appendix E, I present empirical information related to the calculation of all the abnormal returns throughout the Class Period, including those days when the Complaint alleges there were corrective disclosures: November 24, 2015; May 26, 2016; June 2, 2016; August 25, 2016; February 27, 2017; May 24, 2017; May 25, 2017; November 21, 2017; December 1, 2017; and March 14, 2018.<sup>107</sup> The alleged stock-price effects from these disclosures are on November 24, 2015; May 26, 2016; June 2-3, 2016; August 25, 2016; February 28, 2017; May 24, 2017; May 25, 2017; November 21, 2017; December 4, 2017; and March 14, 2018.<sup>108</sup>

87. All eleven of these days with potential impacts from the disclosures have rapid price responses. All eleven days have negative abnormal returns that are highly statistically significant (ten days with p-values at or below 0.01, which denotes statistical significance with greater than 99% confidence and one day with p-value at or below 0.05, which denotes statistical significance with greater than 95% confidence).

88. Overall, the price reactions for Signet common stock on the corrective disclosure dates are consistent with what an economist would expect when a security trades in an efficient market.

C. Conclusion Based on the Basket of Factors the Courts Evaluate

89. My empirical analyses in this section shows that the disclosure of Signet-specific news caused rapid and significant movements in the prices of Signet common stock. These analyses strongly support the conclusion that the market for Signet common stock was efficient, as Cammer explains: “[o]ne of the most convincing ways to demonstrate [market] efficiency would be to illustrate, over time, a cause and effect relationship between company disclosures and resulting movements in stock price.”<sup>109</sup> Moreover, using the empirical results for the evaluation of the seven operational factors in Section V, I have also presented strong support for my conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

90. Not only have I presented extensive evidence that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market, I note that the empirical analyses herein go well beyond what the Supreme Court has required plaintiffs to demonstrate in Halliburton II. There, the Court reaffirmed Basic:

The Court in Basic acknowledged, however, the debate among economists about the efficiency of capital markets and refused to endorse “any particular theory of how quickly and completely publicly available information is reflected in market price.” The Court instead based the presumption of reliance on the fairly modest premise that “market professionals generally consider most publicly announced material statements about companies, thereby affecting stock market prices.” Moreover, in making the presumption rebuttable, Basic recognized that market efficiency is a matter of degree and accordingly made it a matter of proof.<sup>110</sup>

91. In conclusion, when examining the basket of factors that courts generally rely upon for class certification decisions, which are also consistent with the fundamental principles of economics and finance that academics rely upon to evaluate market efficiency, the evidence strongly supports the conclusion that Signet common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

VII. ABILITY TO CALCULATE DAMAGES ON A CLASS-WIDE BASIS FOR SIGNET COMMON STOCK

92. As set forth in the Complaint, Plaintiff alleges that Defendants violated section 10(b) of the Exchange Act. As explained below, damages for this claim can be calculated on a Class-wide basis using a common methodology.

A. Calculating Damages for Violation of § 10(b) of the Exchange Act

93. The calculation of class-wide damages for a violation of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act is subject to a common and broadly accepted methodology, wherein damages are measured as the “out-of-pocket” loss suffered by Class Members. The “out-of-pocket” loss is based on the daily level of artificial inflation in the prices for Signet common stock caused by Defendants’ alleged misrepresentations and/or omissions. Artificial inflation is calculated as the difference between the actual prices paid for the Signet common stock and the true or “but-for” values of the securities absent the alleged misrepresentations and omissions (i.e., had the truth been disclosed, the price would have been the true value). There are a variety of commonly-utilized methods to estimate the true price on each date of the Class Period. However, no matter which method might be chosen at the merits stage of this litigation, the methodology used to estimate the true price (and thus calculate artificial inflation) is common to all putative class members and will be applied on a class-wide basis.<sup>111</sup>

94. This common damages methodology using the “out-of-pocket” loss often begins with the same type of event study I have used to evaluate the price-related factors.

Using the results of an event study along with the disclosures of firm-specific information, the level of artificial inflation in the prices of the Signet common stock caused by the Defendants' alleged misstatements and omissions can be calculated based on the price reactions to disclosures revealing these alleged misstatements and omissions. From this, daily levels of inflation can be calculated by adjusting the inflation measure for each day throughout the Class Period. This methodology applies on a class-wide basis. Finally, daily levels of inflation along with the actual trading activity of Class Members can be used to calculate individual damages in a mechanical fashion.<sup>112</sup>

95. In summary, to calculate damages, I identify the level of price inflation in Signet common stock attributable to the specific misrepresentations and omissions ultimately established by Plaintiff. This “but-for” price does not depend on, nor need to consider, an individual investor’s risk tolerance or expected returns. Rather it is common to all investors because it measures how the misrepresented information affected Signet’s common stock price, which is of course the essence of fraud-on-the-market.

VIII. CONCLUSION

96. In this report, commonly-utilized and generally-accepted statistical tests examining the behavior of Signet common stock price movements on earnings announcement dates collectively over the Class Period, as well as other empirical analyses of certain price movements, demonstrate that Signet common stock rapidly responded to unanticipated and material Company-specific information. The analyses of the other factors set forth in Cammer and Krogman, which, consistent with the principles of economics and finance and academic research indicate market efficiency, also support the conclusion that Signet stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period.

97. My opinion is based on an examination of all the factors that make up the basket of indicators that in combination demonstrate the degree to which the market for

<sup>112</sup> In addition, the 90-day period following the end of the Class Period would also need to be examined. Under the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (“PSLRA”), a plaintiff may not recover more than the difference between the purchase price and the mean trading price of the stock during the 90-day look-back period. See 15 U.S.C. § 78u-4(e)(1).

Signet common stock is efficient. As discussed above, when evaluating the price-related and operational factors within this basket, it is by no means necessary that each factor in that basket offer support; even so it is clear that there is strong support for my opinion that the common stock traded in an efficient market throughout the Class Period. The empirical evidence includes:

- (1) The high average weekly turnover of Signet common stock;
- (2) The continuous coverage of Signet by analysts, investment professionals, public press, and financial institutions, along with regular and frequent disclosures by the Company in the form of press releases, teleconference earnings calls and SEC filings;
- (3) The fact that Signet was listed on the NYSE;
- (4) The fact Signet met the criteria for eligibility to file SEC Form S-3;
- (5) The activity and number of institutional traders along with the large proportion of institutional holdings of Signet common stock;
- (6) The variable short interest of Signet common stock;
- (7) The market capitalization of Signet common stock;
- (8) The large float of Signet common stock;
- (9) The narrow bid-ask spread of Signet common stock;
- (10) The relationship between Signet common stock returns on days with news versus days with no news; and
- (11) The lack of persistent and systematic autocorrelation between past and current abnormal returns of Signet common stock.

98. Finally, it is my opinion that the calculations of damages on a class-wide basis for Signet common stock are subject to common methodologies for violation of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

[12] For the Signet chronology, I compiled lists of SEC filings, analyst reports, and news articles from August 29, 2013 to March 14, 2018. I compiled the list of all of Signet's SEC filings from the SEC website. The list of analyst reports is based on reports available from the Thomson Eikon and Capital IQ electronic databases. This is not necessarily a comprehensive list of all analyst reports potentially issued on Signet. For news articles, I searched Bloomberg and Factiva. For Bloomberg, I used the ticker symbol "SIG" and searched for Bloomberg News, Bloomberg First Word, and Marketwired sources with "medium" relevance. For Factiva, I searched all sources for the company name of "Signet Jewelers, Ltd." To eliminate duplicate stories for each of the news providers (Bloomberg and Factiva), a news story was considered a duplicate and eliminated if it had exactly the same date, timestamp, headline, news source, and lead paragraph as another news story from the same provider.

A. Regression Specification Used in the Event Study

1. For event study analysis, I use generally-accepted econometric methods and specify a regression model that includes certain explanatory variables – i.e., the variables that explain the outside influences on the variation in the daily returns to Signet common stock. I use a widely-used market model that includes as explanatory variables the general market returns and the returns to an industry index. This specification can be written as:

$$R_t = \alpha + \beta_1(R_{mt}) + \beta_2(INDUSTRY_t) + e_t.^1$$

2. In this equation,  $R_t$  is daily percentage return of Signet common stock,  $R_{mt}$  is a proxy for the daily market return (represented by the S&P 500 Total Return Index with Bloomberg identifier “SPTR”) and  $INDUSTRY_t$  is a proxy for the daily industry return (represented by the S&P 400 Specialty Retail Industry Total Return Index with Bloomberg identifier “S4SPRET”).<sup>2,3</sup> The parameter  $\alpha$  represents the intercept coefficient or constant term, while the  $\beta$  coefficients represent the empirical relationship between movements of

<sup>3</sup> Because the index level for the S&P 400 Specialty Retail Industry Total Return Index was not available before July 1, 2013, I use the daily return from the S&P 400 Specialty Retail Industry Index (Bloomberg identifier “S4SPRE”) for days on or before July 1, 2013. At the start and end of the Class Period, the S&P 400 Specialty Retail Industry Index had 18 and 12 members, respectively. Signet was a member of this index before July 29, 2015. I removed the impact of Signet’s daily stock price movements from the changes in the daily value of the industry index. I removed Signet’s daily return based on its daily index weight (source: Bloomberg), where the daily industry return on date  $t$  is equal to: Return of the S4SPRET or S4SPRE on date  $t$  minus the product of Signet’s weight on date  $t-1$  times Signet’s daily return on date  $t$ , all divided by one minus Signet’s weight on date  $t-1$  (on the date Signet entered the index, I used its weight for that day).

Signet common stock prices and the movements of the market and industry indexes. The  $e_t$  term represents an estimation error for each date. Data from a period immediately prior to each date when the firm-specific abnormal return is to be examined is generally used as the Control (or estimation) Period to estimate the parameters or coefficients of the regression, as it is here with the use of rolling regressions (described below).<sup>4</sup>

3. For each trading day of the Class Period<sup>5</sup>, I use a rolling period of 120 trading days before each date, to estimate a separate set of parameters or coefficients (namely  $\alpha$ ,  $\beta_1$ , and  $\beta_2$ ) used to calculate the abnormal return and the standard error for that date. Therefore, I have run 1,143 separate market model regressions using 1,143 Control Periods, with each Control Period ending on the trading date immediately prior to the date for which I calculate the abnormal return.<sup>6</sup>

4. In addition to the two explanatory variables, for the 1,143 regressions I include “dummy variables”<sup>7</sup> to account and adjust for atypical variation in the daily returns to the common stock that results from the disclosures during the Control Period of significant firm-specific information. I use a dummy variable on 31 dates.<sup>8</sup> The 31 dates are the corrective disclosure dates alleged in the Complaint and days on which the

<sup>4</sup> “There are essentially four choices for the estimation period: before the event window, during the window, after the window, and around the window. The majority of events studies use an estimation period before the event.” Glenn V. Henderson, Jr., Problems and Solutions in Conducting Event Studies, 57 J. of Risk and Ins., 282-306, 291 (June 1990).

<sup>5</sup> I refer to the “Class Period+” to mean the Class Period plus March 14, 2018, which is the price impact day following the last day of the Class Period.

<sup>6</sup> I run an addition regression for August 28, 2013, the trading day prior to the start of the Class Period in order to obtain an abnormal return used in the analysis of autocorrelation.

<sup>7</sup> A dummy variable is an additional explanatory variable that takes on the value of 1 on the date indicated and 0 for all other dates. In econometric time-series analysis, dummy variables are often used to indicate a non-recurring event that is unique, unusual or anomalous, such as a specific earnings announcement.

<sup>8</sup> The impact dates for the 31 earnings-related or corrective disclosure dates are: 3/28/2013, 5/23/2013, 8/29/2013, 11/26/2013, 1/9/2014, 3/27/2014, 5/22/2014, 8/28/2014, 11/25/2014, 1/8/2015, 3/26/2015, 5/28/2015, 8/27/2015, 11/24/2015, 1/7/2016, 2/29/2016, 3/24/2016, 5/26/2016, 6/2/2016, 6/3/2016, 8/25/2016, 11/22/2016, 1/11/2017, 2/28/2017, 3/9/2017, 5/24/2017, 5/25/2017, 8/24/2017, 11/21/2017, 12/4/2017, and 1/10/2018.

Company announced earnings results, a preliminary earnings result, or holiday season sales results. These are dates on which Signet's stock price might be affected by disclosures of unexpected firm-specific material information. For each disclosure, I determined whether the disclosure was after the market closed and, if so, the following trading day was used as the price impact date.<sup>9</sup>

5. I include a dummy variable when there is a release of important Signet-specific information, because should that single date have a large abnormal return caused not by chance, but by Signet's disclosure of material, unanticipated firm-specific information, this could possibly change the mix of information in the market that is important to investors. The use of dummy, indicator, control, or intervention variables, as well as simply excluding anomalous dates or periods, is a widely used and generally accepted econometric technique employed in the academic finance literature.<sup>10</sup> For example, Professor Carol Alexander states that "one might consider creating a dummy [variable] to model the timing of important news announcements... [or] whenever the data period covers ... a temporary shift due to an extreme market movement."<sup>11</sup> Prof. Alexander adds, "If dummies are omitted there will be residual problems that lead to inefficient

parameter estimates on the real explanatory variables.”<sup>12</sup> It is also consistent with methods courts have relied upon to certify securities classes.<sup>13</sup>

6. Using the specifications of the market model above, including the dummy variables, and a rolling period of 120 trading days prior to each date, I estimate a set of parameters for each trading day of the Class Period+. For the 1,143 regressions I ran over the Class Period+, the coefficients explaining the variation in the returns of Signet common stock range from 0.63 to 1.40 for  $\beta_1$  and range from 0.04 to 1.31 for  $\beta_2$ . The 1,143 adjusted R-squared measures range from 14.5% to 82.9%. The average adjusted R-squared measure is approximately 57.3%. The results for each regression are provided in Appendix E.

B. Estimating Signet-Specific Price Movements

7. The second step of the event study methodology uses the estimated coefficients from the 1,143 regressions, namely 1,143 measures of  $\alpha$ ,  $\beta_1$ , and  $\beta_2$ , and multiplies them by the actual observed daily return measures for their respective explanatory variables on the date immediately following the end of each Control Period. On each day during the Class Period+, the products of these multiplications are summed

<sup>12</sup> Id. at 441. Without accounting for these dates, atypical price movements would then be used for the subsequent 120 days to estimate 120 sets of regression parameters, 120 predicted returns, and thus 120 abnormal returns and 120 standard errors. Therefore, if there is a large abnormal return caused by the release of material, unanticipated firm-specific important information, which is obviously not a random event, its influence on the Signet common stock price movement must be accounted for. If it is not accounted for via a dummy variable, this non-random influence might contaminate the estimation process during the Control Period and induce a distortion or bias in the parameter estimates, predicted returns, and thus the abnormal returns and standard errors for all 120 subsequent days. Using dummy variables to control for the price impact of potentially important non-random or atypical informational disclosures in each of the 1,143 different regression Control Periods, results in regression model coefficients that more precisely reflect the normal or typical return relationship between Signet and the market and industry indexes, and thus improves the efficiency of the estimated parameters, predicted returns and abnormal returns.

<sup>13</sup> For example, see In re Groupon, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2015 WL 1043321, at *7: “Dr. Feinstein explained that dummy variables are widely used during a control period to extract atypical days. Consistent with other experts, he used dummy variables to control for potentially abnormal returns related to earnings announcements. Accordingly, he used dummy variables during the control period for all earnings-related trading dates, including the event days. He also used a dummy variable for May 14, 2012, because it was not only an unusual trading day, but also because it was contemporaneously described as atypical by the news media.” (citations omitted).

to calculate the predicted daily return. On each of the 1,143 days of the Class Period+, the portion of Signet's stock price movement or the "firm-specific effect" is calculated as the abnormal return (also referred to as the excess return or residual). The abnormal return is calculated by subtracting the predicted daily return from the actual daily return. This subtraction yields the portion of the daily return (i.e., the firm-specific portion of the return) that is not predicted or explained by market- and industry-wide influences.

C. Determining Whether Signet-Specific Price Movements Are Outside the Bounds of What Would Be Expected by Chance

8. In the third step of the event study, I determine whether the abnormal return on each date is outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance. I do this by presenting empirical evidence showing whether or not the 1,143 firm-specific abnormal returns are what economists call statistically significantly different from zero (hereinafter referred to as "significant returns").

9. A statistical test called the t-test is employed to assess the statistical significance of Signet's abnormal return for each date. The t-test is based on a t-statistic, which is calculated by taking the estimated abnormal return and dividing it by the standard error of the regression. The standard error represents the typical or normal volatility of the unexplained or residual price movements of the common stock. This statistical test is used to determine whether the abnormal return is outside the bounds of what would be expected from random volatility alone; or, in other words, whether it is significantly different from zero with a specified degree of certainty. I use the scientifically accepted level of certainty and declare statistical significance at a 95% level. This means that when Signet's abnormal return is statistically significant, I can conclude that the Signet abnormal return is outside the bounds of what would be expected by chance, with at least 95% confidence.

10. Finally, in the typical event study performed in the context of class certification, there is an examination of the relationship between the abnormal returns, the statistical significance of those abnormal returns and unexpected news related to the subject company. I present such an analysis in my Report.

[7] Daily industry return is the daily return for the S&P 400 Specialty Retail Industry Total Return Index (after removing Signet's daily return based on its daily index weight from the index return). The Excess INDUSTRY<sub>t</sub> returns are used to account for industry-wide effects in the market model, after removing the effect of market returns. The formula for removing the effect of market returns from the industry return is {industry return – (intercept + beta * market return)}. The intercept (-0.0004) and beta (0.9248) are estimated by regressing daily industry returns on market returns over the period 3/8/2013 to 3/14/2018.

[8] Intercept from a market model regression estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[9] Coefficient for the market return from a market model regression estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[10] Coefficient for the excess industry return from a market model regression estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[11] =  $[8] + \{[9] \times [6]\} + \{[10] \times [7]\}$ .[12] =  $[5] - [11]$ .

[13] Root MSE of a market model estimated over the prior 120 trading days.

[14] =  $[12] / [13]$ .
